MENTAL HEALTH
ADVOCATE

BOOK MICHAEL FOR SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS

After battling depression earlier in his career, Michael now dedicates himself to Mental Health Advocacy and the importance of seeking out support. Michael also coaches multiple basketball teams and hosts clinics in the greater Tri-state area.

In 2003 Michael was drafted 9th overall and played four seasons in the NBA with the New York Knicks and Chicago Bulls. After his NBA career, he played professionally overseas in Puerto Rico and Uruguay. He then joined the newly established BIG3 league with many of his former NBA colleagues.

Michael was born and raised in the basketball hotspot of Prince George's County Maryland where numerous NBA stars hail from. While at Georgetown, Michael followed the path of previous star centers and became his own; leading the school in "top five" for points, rebounds, and blocks.
